THE DUCHESS OF ARGYLL.

LONDON, Sept. 3.

The relations of Lady Byron's family have given rise to much conversation in the London circles. Shortly after the receipt of the news of Mrs. Stowe, in the Argyll family, of the removal of the remains of Lord and Lady Byron, to not a complete or satisfactory character, and that the divorce from Lord Lovelace, and their subsequent burial in Kensal Green cemetery, including the publication of a correspondence that had hitherto remained private, and important matters connected with the family, and the publication of Byron's memoirs. Without entering into Mrs. Stowe's statement, which it is a grave breach of trust to make, it is understood that the Duchess of Argyll, a daughter of Lady Byron, and a relation of the surviving widow of her son, Lady Byron's representatives met in consultation, and that a communication will be made to the press, which will be published without their privity or consent.

The Pall Mall Gazette's narrative does not appear to be correct, but is probably true so far as it goes. It is to be hoped that the whole matter will be thoroughly investigated, in the interests of both the living and the dead.

LETTER FROM ONE OF THE OXFORD BOATMEN.

LONDON, Sept. 3.

Mr. WISE, the late one of the Oxford crew, has written a letter to the London Times, stating that after the Oxford boat like. Mortimer by over a length and three quarters. On regaining the landing place the Oxford crew took Mortimer ashore. They were four or five boat lengths ahead, when a gun was fired, and they supposed it to be a signal for the Cambridge crew to start. In addition to this, having studied a certain distance above the signal post, they stopped, but were ordered to row on by persons above the ship at Mortimer, and hearing reward that the course was not exacting the judge, they rowed on. The course of the Oxford crew was a zigzag one, and they pointed on until they came in. The Harvard men all the time rowed straight. The Oxford men were much distressed at the end of the race, and cannot conveniently of the fields. Mr. Wise adds that the Oxford crew fully acknowledge the decision of the judge.

He has done all in his power to do justice to first complaints, negotiations with the European powers. The Times adds: "Should the American Senate refuse to adopt the treaty for the advantage of all participating powers, for the benefit of the Chinese people, and in honor to themselves concluded in the name of the United States, they will be responsible for the consequences of their own conduct to appease public opinion.

CARDINAL CULLEN ON SCHISMS.

DUBLIN, Sept. 3.

Cardinal Cullen has issued a pastoral letter to the parishioners of his diocese, in which he says: "Schism is the greatest of all evils. It is the greatest misfortune that can befall a people. It is a greater misfortune than famine, than pestilence, than war. Famine, pestilence and war destroy only the body, but schism destroys the soul. Schism is the greatest misfortune that can befall a people. It is a greater misfortune than famine, than pestilence, than war. Famine, pestilence and war destroy only the body, but schism destroys the soul.

DEBATE IN THE SENATE ON THE SENATUS CONSULTUM.

PARIS, Sept. 3.

In the Senate yesterday Prince Napoleon made another speech, wherein he gave utterance to very liberal views, calling for additional reforms. He declared himself in favor of the liberty of the Press. The Minister of the Interior, in reply, protested against the ideas presented by the Prince, adding that the reforms which those ideas would serve to prevent the Council so long as the present Ministers remain the confidants of the Emperor. The discussion was continued in the Senate to-day. M. De Segur termed the speech of Prince Napoleon incendiary. M. De Vibraye defended the speech. M. Rouher, Minister of the Interior, replied to the speech of Prince Napoleon, and said they only disapproved of a Senatus Consultum as Prince Napoleon desired to have.

After further debate four articles of the Senatus Consultum were adopted.

M. Magne is preparing financial reforms, which, it is estimated, will produce a surplus of 40,000,000 francs. The reforms will be brought forward in the Session of the ensuing session of government supervision, and to the reduction of the octroi duties in Paris, and also to reductions in the land tax.

Preparations for the State Fair—Testimony Impeaching the Veracity of Representative Clarke—Indian Revolt—Quaker Ship.

Special Despatch to The Chicago Tribune.

LAWRENCE, Kansas, Sept. 3.

Great preparations are being made for the State Fair, which is to be held at this place commencing on Tuesday next, and continuing four days. It is expected ship loads of visitors will be present from all parts of previous years, especially in the first day.

The Journal publishes a letter from the Probate Judge of Crawford County, on the neutral lands, which contains testimony which will affect the Journal's report of Representative Clarke's visit to that section, and his opinion of the value of settlers' property. The Judge says he has in his possession affidavits from over 100 settlers and squatters, former supporters of Mr. Clarke, sworn to before a Notary Public, denying the truth of the report of Clarke's speech.

The Journal denies the statement of the 20th that three thousand railroad ties were destroyed by the Indians on the Leavenworth line.

A friend has just returned from the Medicine Lodge Creek agency, in the Wichita country, and reports that the feeling quiet among the wild tribes of the plains. The Indians are now in the act of receiving their annuities.
